Belle DeCosta's memoir, Echoes in the Mirror, is a story of resilience and tenacity. Written with humor, its main takeaway is that the right attitude is everything.

Her contemporary fiction series Treading Water (a finalist in a 2021 Indie Book Award) follows a NYC woman who has a breakdown, goes to the family cabin in Maine, and finds her deceased mother's journal. Her mother's words (and Cardinal spirit) help her heal and discover friendship and love. The Heart of Addisen revisits the same characters and their relationships four years later.

The Lesson is a historical fiction novel that follows four connected women: a Jamaican slave in the 1800s, a Savannah socialite in the 1960s, an investment banker in the 1900s, and a Broadway star in the mid 2000s. It just won an International Book Award and was a finalist in a national competition!
